Australia (Apr 03)

China and Australia signed a series of agreements and documents designed to strengthen economic and trade relations and bilateral cooperation in other fields. Visiting Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao and Australian Prime Minister John Howard ... witnessed the inking of eight inter-governmental agreements and documents, including an agreement for cooperation in peaceful use of nuclear energy and an agreement on the transfer of nuclear energy. The others include a treaty on mutual legal assistance in criminal matters, a statement of intent on agricultural technical cooperation programme, a programme for young scientists exchange, and three memorandums of understanding on establishing high-level economic cooperation dialogue, on cooperation in coal mine safety, and on cooperation in education and training respectively. Besides, related ministries or departments from both sides also signed several protocols or cooperative documents concerning issues including Australia's exports of citrus fruits and edible deer products to China. Meanwhile, a number of commercial contracts and deals on mineral products, natural gas, electric power were also signed. (XNA, 3 Apr 06)

Cambodia (Apr 08)

China and Cambodia signed nearly a dozen agreements designed to strengthen bilateral cooperation in fields including economy, trade, health and protection of cultural relics. The documents, among others, include agreements on bilateral economic and technical cooperation and on cooperation in combating transnational crime, a memorandum of understanding on the construction of Greater Mekong Sub-region Information Superhighway Network Cambodian Section, and an agreement on the Second-Phase Project of the Joint Protection of Angkor Temples. The documents were signed following talks between visiting Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao and his Cambodian counterpart Hun Sen, both present at the signing ceremony. (XNA, 8 Apr 06)

Fiji (Apr 04)

... After the talks, visiting Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao and Fijian Prime Minister Laisenia Qarase attended a ceremony for the signing of an economic and technological cooperation agreement between the two governments and other bilateral cooperation documents. The two sides also issued the "Joint Press Communiqué of the PRC government and the government of the Republic of the Fiji Islands". (Xinhua, 4 Apr 06, in BBC PF, 6 Apr 06)

Georgia (Apr 11)

China is to give Georgia a 2.5m-dollar grant under an agreement reached at a meeting between Chinese President Hu Jintao and Georgian President Mikheil Saakashvili. Georgia's debt to China was also resolved during this, the first official visit of a Georgian president to China. Georgian First Deputy Foreign Minister Valeri Chechelashvili said that Georgia's debt to China was 3m dollars. "Georgia will pay 400,000 dollars and the rest will be considered a grant for 2005. It will mean that Georgia has one less creditor," Chechelashvili explained. Chechelashvili said that the 2.5m-dollar grant could be used to open a fruit juice processing plant. "This is a pressing issue at the moment because of the problems with wine," he said. After talks with Hu

Jintao, President Saakashvili signed a declaration on the development of friendship and cooperation. Following talks in a broader format the delegations signed agreements on cultural ties, electronic communications and links between chambers of trade and industry. ... ### Great Britain (Apr 10)

The mayors of Beijing and London signed a sister city agreement, vowing to promote exchanges and cooperation. Visiting London Mayor Ken Livingstone said both cities would benefit from enhanced ties. He said that this agreement would promote the two cities as closer commercial partners, and the understanding of each other's culture for both sides will be strengthened by communications in the sectors of tourism and culture. Beijing and London are the two consecutive hosts of the Olympic Games in 2008 and 2012 respectively. Livingstone and Beijing Mayor Wang Qishan agreed to enhance cooperation on the games. Wang was invited to attend the meeting of European mayors in London next year. The sister city relationship, which will be effective for at least five years, means relations will be closer. London's other sister cities are New York, Moscow, Berlin and Paris. Livingstone will promote London as a tourist destination and academic centre during his three-day visit to China. (XNA, 10 Apr 06)

Japan (Apr 02)

China and Japan signed an agreement in Beijing on mutual assistance and cooperation in law enforcement, information exchange, technical cooperation and personnel training between their customs departments. Under the agreement, customs of the two countries are obliged to provide each other with information on possible activities breaching the Customs laws and regulations within their jurisdiction. According to the agreement the Customs departments of the two countries shall, at the request of the other, conduct special surveillance of people suspected of breaking customs laws. The agreement was signed by Sun Songpu, deputy director of the General Administration of Customs, and Chihiro Atsumi, minister with the Japanese Embassy in China on behalf their governments. The agreement will further consolidate the legal basis for bilateral cooperation between the Customs departments of the two countries, the Chinese Customs department said in a statement. China and Japan are each other's third largest trading partner, and the two countries have cooperated with each other many times on customs cases including drug trafficking, intellectual property rights protection and business irregularities since 2001. (XNA, 2 Apr 06)

New Zealand (Apr 04)

Mayor of Christchurch, the third largest city of New Zealand, left NZ for China on 1 April to sign a Friendship City Agreement with China's Wuhan city, according to a press release issued by the city council on 2 April. Garry Moore is leading a delegation of 20 Canterbury leaders and experts in business, education, science, technology, horticulture and the horse racing industry. The Friendship City status is the highest level of formal relationship conferred by a Chinese City. "It is a huge honour for a city our size and provides us with a partner into China which is experiencing incredible rates of growth and development," said Moore. "The opportunities of our new relationship with Wuhan are enormous, both from an economic and political viewpoint," Moore added. Wuhan, with a population of about 10 million, is one of three knowledge capitals of China. Its strengths are in computer science, opto-electronics, agricultural sciences, nanotechnology, bioscience and Antarctic science. The delegation will be either exploring or furthering relationships they already have with Wuhan institutions. In addition to the formal signing of the Friendship City Agreement on 4 April, Moore's visit includes the Chinese Antarctic centre, Huazhong University of Science and Technology and the Wuhan Botanic Gardens. (XNA, 2 Apr 06)

New Zealand (Apr 06)

The governments of China and New Zealand signed a number of agreements and documents aimed to strengthen bilateral cooperation in areas such as legal assistance, cultural exchanges, and education and training. These included a treaty on mutual legal assistance in criminal matters, a cultural agreement, a protocol on veterinary and sanitary requirements for edible deer products to be exported from New Zealand to China, and a memorandum of understanding on cooperation in education and training between the two countries. Visiting Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao and New Zealand Prime Minister Helen Clark, who held talks earlier Thursday, were present on the occasion. The following decisions were also made public on 6 April: 1) Air New Zealand will open a direct air line between Auckland of New Zealand and Shanghai of China. 2) New Zealand would participate in the 2010 World Expo in Shanghai. 3) China and New Zealand will strengthen cooperation in fighting organized cross-border crimes. Premier Wen arrived in wellington Wednesday [5 April] night for an official visit to New Zealand, the third leg of his four-nation tour. This is the first trip to the island country by a Chinese premier in nearly 18 years. (XNA, 6 Apr 06)

Russia (Mar 21)

China and Russia inked three deals on oil and natural gas cooperation during Russian President Vladimir Putin's visit to China. Chinese President Hu Jintao and Putin witnessed the signing of the three documents and other 12 cooperation documents. The three documents include a principled agreement between the China National Petroleum Corporation (CNPC) and the Russian oil company of Rosneft for forming joint ventures on further oil cooperation, a memorandum of understanding between CNPC and Russia's natural gas company Gazprom for natural gas supply to China, and a summary of negotiations between CNPC and Transneft, a pipeline transport company of Russia. (XNA, 21 Mar 06)

Turkmenistan (Apr 03)

A framework agreement on cooperation in the field of oil and natural gas, which envisages up to 30bn cu.m. of Turkmen gas supplies to China annually, was concluded at the end of the talks between Turkmen President Saparmyrat Nyyazow and Chinese President Hu Jintao in Beijing. On the eve of his visit to Beijing, Nyyazow said in an interview to the [Chinese] Xinhua news agency that Turkmenistan "is ready to supply 30-40bn cu.m. of gas to China, our [gas] deposits are known, and we have got rich reserves". "The cooperation in the oil and gas industry will be developed on the basis of a [newly] established joint company or production sharing," Nyyazow said. At the end of the Turkmen government delegation's visit to Beijing in late 2005, it was reported that the gas would be sold at 80 dollars per 1,000 cu. m. The Turkmen president said in Ashgabat in December last year that Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan were negotiating the construction of a pipeline from the Turkmen border to China. The president also said that [gas] reserves on the right bank of Amu Darya river (across the border with Uzbekistan) would serve as a basis for future supplies of natural gas to China. The sides signed seven documents in total, including a political declaration, an agreement on cooperation in combating terrorism, separatism and extremism, and an agreement on Chinese credits. Turkmenbasy arrived in China on Sunday [2 April]. (ITAR-TASS news agency, Moscow, 3 Apr 06, in BBC PF, 4 Apr 06; full text of the gas pipeline deal: Neytralnyy Turkmenistan, Ashgabat, 4 Apr 06, in BBC PF, 5 Apr 06)

United States (Apr 18)

China and the United States signed a memorandum of understanding on cooperation in deployment of air marshals. Under the MOU, the two countries will cooperate in the deployment of air marshals on board their respective flights entering and exiting the territory of the other side. The signing of the document is one of the major achievements the two countries have made under within the framework of Sino-US long and medium-term anti-terror exchange and cooperation. It will help strengthen security on commercial airliners entering and exiting the territories of the US and China. (XNA, 19 Apr 06)

United States (Apr 18)

China and the United States signed several agreements on expanding bilateral cooperation in science and technology. Xu Guanhua, China's minister of science and technology, and John Marburger, science adviser to President George W. Bush, signed in Washington a protocol on extending an inter-governmental agreement on cooperation in science and technology, and a memorandum of understanding. The two officials also exchanged information on newly announced strategies and plans in their respective countries, aimed at boosting scientific and technological development. Also on 18 April, Xu signed with US Secretary of Health and Human Services Michael Leavitt a memorandum of understanding on health and medical sciences cooperation. The agreement is designed to expand cooperation between the two countries in research of AIDS, infectious diseases, traditional medicine, vaccine-preventable diseases and other medical sciences. The agreements were signed as Chinese President Hu Jintao arrived in the US west coast city of Seattle on Tuesday at the beginning of his first state visit to the United States. Seattle is the first stop of Hu's US trip. China and the United States signed the inter-governmental agreement on cooperation in science and technology in January 1979. Since then, scientific and technological cooperation between the two countries has increased in scope and depth. (XNA, 19 Apr 06)

Venezuela (Apr 18)

Venezuela and China signed an agreement on programme exchange and training of television and radio broadcasters each other, the Venezuelan Communications Ministry said in a statement. Signing the document were Venezuelan Communications Minister William Lara, and Tian Jin, deputy head of China's State Administration of Radio, Film and Television, at a ceremony held in Caracas. Under the agreement, Venezuela agrees to broadcast two channels of Central China Television programmes in Venezuela and will also have access to China Radio International's programmes in a variety of languages. "Radio, television and cinema are the frontline" of Venezuela's revolution, and the Latin American country needs China's know-how to fight on this terrain, Lara said. Tian said that the cultural and information exchange would boost friendship between the two nations, as radio and television are the easiest ways to get information. ... (XNA, 19 Apr 06)

Yemen (Apr 06)

... Yemen-China trade cooperation have seen rapid development in the past years, said Yemeni President Ali Abdallah Salih, who is paying a state visit to China in company of a 100-member-strong business delegation. Statistics from the Chinese customs show that the trade value between the two countries topped 3.22bn US dollars in 2005, up 67.8 per cent. Following talks between Salih and Chinese President Hu Jintao on Thursday, the two countries signed eight cooperative agreements concerning energy, telecommunication and infrastructure. ... #### International Agreements

A programme of action on economic development and cooperation was signed at the first ministerial-level meeting of the "China-Pacific Island Countries Economic Development and Cooperation Forum", which was held between China and eight Pacific island countries, on 5 April in Fiji. The current meeting is being held from 5 to 6 April. Ministers of the PRC [People's Republic of China], Cook Islands, the Republic of the Fiji Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, Niue, the Independent State of Papua New Guinea, the Independent State of Samoa, the Kingdom of Tonga, and the Republic of Vanuatu, attended the meeting and, on behalf of their governments, signed the "programme". The Commonwealth of Australia and New Zealand also sent representatives to attend the meeting. All of the ministers attending the meeting gave applause for the economic and trade cooperation that has been carried out between China and Pacific island countries and expressed their firm belief that, with the joint efforts made by the governments of all of the countries, there is still a huge potential of further developing the economic and trade cooperation between the two sides. The ministers also noticed that, on their economic development, China and Pacific island countries have their own characteristics, and agreed that, on the principle basis of equality, mutual benefit, complementing each other with their own strengths, mutual respect, and mutual trust, the two sides establish an economic and trade cooperation partnership relationship. The ministers expressed the belief that establishment of the "China-Pacific Island Countries Economic Development and Cooperation Forum" adds to the mutually beneficial cooperation between all of the countries in trade, investment, and other economic fields. The ministers also agreed that, under the guidance of the "programme", the economic and trade cooperation between China and Pacific island countries should not affect the process of the regional unification, nor should it hinder all of the countries from performing their obligations specified in any international treatments. The ministers attending the meeting agreed that, through promoting exchange of high-level visits and exchange between the governments of China and Pacific island countries, and through consultations between high-ranking government officials of the two sides, the two sides should step up and perfect bilateral consultations in order to decide the new spheres and new forms of economic and trade cooperation, and to explore and establish a mechanism of consultation on the multilateral economic and trade issue. They also agreed that all of the countries should step up cooperation at the WTO and in other multilateral trade fields, support each other, and coordinate their stands if possible. All of the countries also agreed to regard broadening the trade between China and Pacific island countries as the common goal of the countries attending the forum, and agreed that all of the countries, on the basis of equality and mutual benefits, should work to reach a bilateral trade agreement that is in accord with international trade regulations and actively implement the agreement. On the issue of investment and cooperation between enterprises, the ministers attending the meeting agreed to endeavour to improve the investment environments of their countries, build a legal framework favourable to investment promotion and protection, including signing and implementing an agreement on investment promotion and protection, an agreement on avoiding double levy of taxes, and other bilateral agreements, and to encourage and spur enterprises to carry out investment cooperation. The ministers also agreed to take jointly-approved measures to promote cooperation between China and Pacific island countries in the agricultural field, including fishery cooperation. The "programme" also consists of other issues, including carrying out cooperation between the countries attending the meeting on tourism, transportation, financial, engineering and infrastructure construction, development and exploitation of natural and human resources, and in other spheres. The meeting decided that the ministerial-level meeting of the forum will normally be held once every four years. The second ministerial-level meeting of the forum will be held in Beijing, and the main tasks of the meeting will be to examine and appraise the results of the first ministerial-level meeting. The subsequent meetings will be held rotationally in the countries attending the forum. (Xinhua, 5 Apr 06, in BBC PF, 7 Apr 06)

Macau SAR Agreement with Brazil (Mar 24)

China's Macau Special Administrative Region and Brazil have started to offer each other visa-free access for a maximum stay of 90 days. A press release issued here on 29 March by Macau's Information Bureau said the mutual visa-free access pact has been effective since March 24, 2006. There are currently 69 countries and regions having agreed to grant visa-free access or visa-on-arrival to MSAR passport holders, said the release. (XNA, 29 Mar 06)

Law for Road and Traffic Safety, adopted at the 127th State Council's executive meeting on 1 March 2006. The law will go into effect as of 1 July 2006. (Decree No. 462 of the PRC State Council, signed by Wen Jiabao, Premier of the State Council, on 21 Mar 2006) The regulations consist of five chapters with 36 articles. (Full text: RMRB, 29 Mar 06)

Labour Contract Law of the People's Republic of China (Draft). The draft law consists of seven chapters with 65 articles. (Full text: RMRB, 21 Mar 06)

Interim Regulations on Human Organ Transplant Clinic Application Administration, issued by the Ministry of Health on 27 March 2006. The regulations will come into effect on July 1, 2006. China's Ministry of Health issued a temporary regulation on human organ transplants, explicitly banning the sale of organs and introducing a set of medical standards for organ transplants in an effort to guarantee medical safety and the health of patients. Mao Qun'an, the ministry's spokesman, said that the temporary regulations ban any kind of organ dealing, require the medical institutions to obtain a written agreement from the donors before the transplant and donors are entitled to refuse the donation at the last minute. The regulation, effective from 1 July, requires medical institutions to register at provincial level health departments. Class Three A hospitals, China's top ranking comprehensive hospitals, can apply for registration if they have doctors with clinical organ transplant qualifications, the related transplant equipment, a good management system and a medical ethics committee. Unregistered medical institutions must not practice organ transplants and qualified doctors with clinical organ transplant training must not practice in unregistered hospitals. Mao said that registration will be cancelled if the patients who receive the transplant do not survive a certain number of years. If the ministry finds any registered medical institutions to be unqualified, the ministry will cancel the registration and punish the people responsible. The regulation also requires organ transplant cases to be discussed by the ethics committee and the legitimacy of the organ confirmed by the committee. The operations must take place after the committee's approval. It is estimated that at least 2 million patients in China need organ transplants each year but only up to 20,000 transplants can be conducted because of a shortage of donated organs. (XNA, 27 Mar 06)

The Chinese government on 12 April published a newly-issued Statute on Prevention and Control of Schistosomiasis, commonly known as snail fever, vowing to beef up efforts to fight the disease. The statute, approved by the State Council on 22 March, will take effect from 1 May. Eliminating the freshwater snail that carries the disease is one of the major substantial measures to control schistosomiasis, as it is the intermediate host of the blood fluke, which causes the disease, according to the statute. Officials detected 10.58m square meters of new snail habitats in 2005, up 0.44 per cent over 2004 when China had 3.85bn square meters of snail habitats, according to figures from the Ministry of Health. The statute underlined the urgent need for better treatment of human and animal waste, as this was a key transmission channel. Water supply systems and toilets in rural areas should be renovated to make sure fluke eggs were eradicated. Fishermen should be provided with basic preventive medicine, boats should have septic tanks, and sanitary toilets should be built on river and lake banks, requires the statute. Livestock should be kept in enclosures in affected areas and livestock is banned from known snail habitat areas. Stock waste is required to be treated before being discharged, it says. Local authorities relying on a common water system or in isolated regions should coordinate both prevention plans and control measures, said an official in charge of the Legislative Affairs Office under the State Council, or the central government. The central government would offer financial supports to the underdeveloped regions, as well as major prevention and control projects, while local governments should allocate funds to fight the disease, the official said. Basic preventive medicine must be provided free to rural farmers, and preferable healthcare rates should be available for other affected groups, including needy farmers, workers who contract the disease through injuries at work, citizens who enjoy urban medical insurance and people infected in flood control. Free examination and treatment and free basic preventive medicine must also be given to livestock, according to the official. Schistosomiasis affects 74 countries and regions, most of which are underdeveloped, with approximately 200 million people infected and the total affected population amounting to 600 million. China has 12 high-prevalence provinces and regions of schistosomiasis in and south of the Yangtze River [Chang Jiang], the country's longest river. Records of the disease date back more than 2,100 years. The epidemic has been hard to control in the past, owing to poor waste treatment in fields, rural latrines and fishing boats and waters. Schistosomiasis is a wasting disease causing blood loss and tissue damage. By the end of 2005, China had spent 19.5bn yuan (some 2.4bn US dollars) in renovating rural toilets, according to the Ministry of Health. (XNA, 12 Apr 06)

The State Administration of Taxation has issued a set of regulations on implementing the new consumption taxes, a source with the administration said on 1 April. According to the regulations, taxpayers should go to local taxation organs to get registered again if their tax items have been changed. The regulations help standardize tax collection of taxation organs, and on the other hand offer guidance for people to perform their taxation duties well, the source said. On 21 March, the Ministry of Finance and State Administration of Taxation issued a decree to readjust the taxation of some items of consumption goods. Beginning 1 April, different tax rates will be imposed on disposable wooden chopsticks, wooden floor panels, yachts, luxury watches and more oil-based products. (XNA, 1 Apr 06)

Three central government departments jointly issued on 16 April regulations for management of mainland residents' travels to the Taiwan region, one day after a package of favourable policies to boost cross-strait relations were issued. The regulations, the Procedures for the Management of Mainland Residents Travelling to the Taiwan Region, is jointly issued by the National Tourism Administration (NTA), the Ministry of Public Security, and the Taiwan Affairs Office of the State Council. According to the 17-article regulations, mainland visitors would tour Taiwan in groups organized by mainland travel agencies designated by government departments, while Taiwan travel agencies receiving mainland tourists should also be confirmed by the relevant departments on the mainland. The NTA and relevant departments adopt a quota system for tourist groups to Taiwan and the quotas will be given to relevant mainland travel agencies who have signed cooperative contracts with their Taiwan counterparts. A mainland official in charge of this matter said the issuance of the regulations indicates that the mainland is making earnest efforts to boost cross-strait personnel exchanges and Taiwan's tourism sector, while hoping mainland tourists could travel to Taiwan in a planned, organized and orderly manner. The mainland will try to set up an integrity-based tourism across the strait by guiding mainland agencies and individuals in their activities. Last April, Hu Jintao, general secretary of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), and Lien Chan, then chairman of the Chinese Kuomintang (KMT), reached consensus during their talks, including the promotion of Taiwan's tourism industry by encouraging mainland tourists to make cross-strait tours. On 3 May 2005 the mainland said it would allow mainland residents to travel to Taiwan in the near future. To date the mainland side has got everything ready, only awaiting a response from Taiwan for such tours to start. (XNA, 16 Apr 06)

The CCP CC has recently promulgated the Regulations on the work to educate and train cadres (on a trial basis). The regulations, which consist of nine chapters with 57 articles, will become effective on the day of promulgation. (Xinhua, 29 Mar 06, in BBC PF, 31 Mar 06; full text: RMRB, 30 Mar 06)

Regulation on Assessing the Environmental Impact of the Chinese People's Liberation Army. Beijing, 17 March: The Chinese army has been ordered to seek local authorities' approval and pass environment evaluation for construction projects and military exercise plans to prevent environmental hazards. Chinese President Hu Jintao, who is also the chairman of the Central Military Commission, recently issued a regulation to set up an environment evaluation system to curb pollution caused by military activities. According to the regulation, construction of military bases, ports, logistics centres and exercise fields should only be approved after the project passes environment evaluation. The assessment should also be applied to other activities that might harm the environment, including military training, goods transfer, weapon purchases, repair and disposal, the regulation said. All the assessments should be approved by local environment authorities, it added. The six-chapter regulation also specified the assessment procedure, organs responsible for the assessment and the punishments for people and organizations that violate the regulation. ... (XNA, 17 Mar 06)

Beijing, 19 March: A few days ago, Central Military Commission [CMC] Chairman Hu Jintao signed an order to promulgate the Regulations on the Headquarters of the Chinese People's Liberation Army, which will come into force on 1 April 2006. They are the fifth-generation regulations on headquarters promulgated by our armed forces and auxiliary regulations of the same system will also be promulgated one after another. The regulations on headquarters are basic rules and regulations for the military work of our armed forces and are the basis for the work and construction of headquarters at all levels. We promulgated four generations of regulations on headquarters in 1938, 1977,

1983 and 1996. The existing regulations on headquarters were promulgated 10 years ago, which have played an important role in standardizing and strengthening the work and construction of headquarters. With the development and changes of the situation and tasks, it is inevitable that the regulations should be updated. The newly promulgated regulations on headquarters have 90 articles in 12 chapters and two appendixes. Compared with the contents and structure of the existing regulations, an additional chapter "Organize and command the work to deal with contingencies" has been added to the new generation of regulations, two chapters have been deleted, and the order of two chapters have been changed. The scientific development concept has been written as an important guideline in military regulations for the first time. ... (Xinhua, 19 Mar 06, in BBC PF, 20 Mar 06; RMRB, 20 Mar 06)
